Keep those bicycles off the sidewalks

By Elaine Wilson

Bicycles are vehicles which belong on the roadway not on downtown sidewalks, but Didsbury cyclists continue to disregard a bylaw in place addressing the situation.

The Review has received a number of letters from Didsbury residents concerned about the matter, with the primary worry being one of safety for both cyclists and pedestrians.

Robert Wigg said the problem seems to be concentrated in the downtown sector as he has received no complaints from individuals regarding the residential area.

Administration would appreciate help from local merchants and pedestrians in pointing out the danger to cyclists navigating along the sidewalk.

After discussing the matter, administration has opted not to post signage spelling out the legalities of the matter, as it was felt these would likely be simply ignored.

Notices will go out in utility bills as part of an ongoing education and public awareness campaign by town administration personnel.

Cyclists should note there is a fine for riding bicycles on sidewalks, and common sense should make it obvious to violators that injury could result to both the rider and the pedestrian should a collision occur.

"It has to come down to responsible bike riding," Wigg said. "Parents should make sure their children know bikes are not allowed on sidewalks. I am concerned that, with the number of reports, it's only a matter of time until someone gets hit by a bicycle."

Cat complaints compiled

By Elaine Wilson

Should Didsbury draft a cat control bylaw as Carstairs and Olds have done? Exactly what would such a bylaw cover and how would enforcement be handled?

Currently no bylaw is in place and council presently has no plans to formally address the issue. However, Robert Wigg said if enough people approach council with concerns on the issue, the issue might well wind up on an upcoming council agenda.

Wigg said animal control issues tend to be contentious, and the cat issue is one example.

Wigg said administration has received "between half a dozen and a dozen complaints that I would classify as 'official complaints' as opposed to people who just say 'there's too many cats in town'."

A letter from a Didsbury resident which was enclosed with council minutes at last week's regular council session requested that it be made mandatory that cats be licensed and kept on a leash. Wigg advised council members that several other letters in a similar vein have subsequently been turned into the town office.

"It would be up to the citizen, the taxpayers in town, to convince council that there is a need for a bylaw regarding cats," Wigg said. "It could be by petition, but then it should be a legal petition under the MGA [Municipal Government Act]. But if they're going to get involved in something like that, for the petition to actually be legal, and for council to accept it as a legal petition, then it should be done properly. On the other hand, a letter signed by 100 taxpayers would have an effect in that council has to look at what 100 people in town are saying."

Wigg said the issue is a difficult one, as there seems to be "two polarized groups, those who hate [cats] and those who love them."

"It's important that those people who own animals take care of them and insure that they do not infringe on the enjoyment of others," Wigg said.

"Whether it's dogs barking or cats, or whatever."

The Town of Carstairs' cat bylaw is a two page document covering three main issues in addition to basic definitions, those being: responsibilities of the owner, impounding and disposition and a specific penalty schedule for violators.

The Town of Olds' bylaw is a more detailed four-page text with three additional schedules attached. The Olds bylaw covers the following points: Interpretation and application, General provisions, Running at large regulations, Impoundment and disposition, Obstruction, Notices, Offenses and fines, Issuance of tickets and Summary conviction. Amendments to the original bylaw restrict ownership to no more than two cats and a provision granting the animal control officer authorization to utilize live traps "in a humane manner". Schedules attached to the bylaw cover impoundment/ care and sustenance/ and veterinary fees, animal control ticketing, and specified penalties up to $75 for a third offense and $100 for obstruction.

Town and county work together to 'weed out' problem

By Elaine Wilson

The current Town of Didsbury bylaw covering weeds was struck in 1984, and Robert Wigg said action is taken on a complaint basis with around seven notices sent to date this year.

Larry Rice, who handles weed control efforts for the county, is gratified that the Town of Didsbury plans to actively link with the county in eradicating noxious and restricted weeds where possible. He hopes residents will help support elimination endeavours by keeping an eye out for two targeted weeds: Scentless Chamomile and Tall Buttercup.

Both weeds spread rapidly, especially in ungrazed wildlife habitats or pasture lands. Tall Buttercup thrives in moist areas and produces an acrid juice which livestock largely avoid, but which produces digestive problems if consumed.

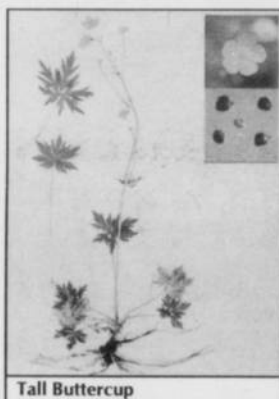

The basic methods of control are chemical and cultural which translates into spray applications and/or mowing or outright digout/removal efforts.

After Rice showed Wigg what to look for, and pointed out some problem areas in town, Wigg set to clearing an infested area, subsequently bagging the weeds for disposal.

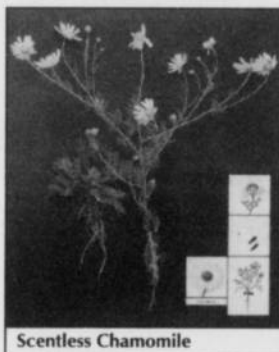

Wigg said it makes good sense for both parties to work together. While it may well be unintentional, the spread of the weed both inside town limits and across the county becomes a problem for all.

"In the big picture, control of noxious weeds is an important issue," Wigg said.

Rice said residents of both town and county are welcome to call him at the county office for more information on identifying and eliminating the targeted weeds.

Town applies for grants

Council endorsed Wes Yeoman's application for the Street Improvement Program, submitted to the province for consideration on July 25, 1996. The Town of Didsbury is eligible for 75 per cent of a project that totals approximately $565,000. The grant is reviewed on a first come/first served basis. Yeoman's application noted that five areas were specified in the grant application, those being:

EDITORIAL / OPINIONS

Elaine WILSON

Feeling "sheepish"

From the: "Everyone likes to be in the thick of things but this is ridiculous" department:

The Didsbury Memorial Complex arena was filled to the rafters Saturday afternoon with rodeo fans who'd come to see FCA rodeo action at its finest and the organizers and athletes on deck were coming through nicely.

Flanked on his left by two video camera operators and on his right by your Review reporter, rodeo photographer Ken Marcikaski (along with the rest of us), kept his eyes trained on the infield, waiting for that perfect picture to appear in the viewfinder.

The best shot is the one snagged from close proximity but I was perfectly happy to wait behind the boards and plexi-glass partition of the west penalty box and leave the infield beat to the professional rodeo photographers who fearlessly rove right alongside the rodeo clowns and rampaging bulls.

Every so often Marcikaski would join us on the sidelines, and for whatever reason, this was one of those times. But it looked like he'd made a good call, because here came that perfect shot, and none of us would even have to get our boots dusty.

Nothing had come this close to us all day. I remember thinking, "This is great!" when a sudden twist in the action rendered the range too close to capture. I couldn't believe I was going to miss the best shot of the day, but there was no time to change lenses and it was just too close for my telephoto to lock onto. I had an instant to indulge feelings of irritation and disappointment, and another to wonder about the stability of the plexiglass sheet in front of me and then - Wham!

The cowboy we were all aiming our sights on flew straight at us like he'd been shot out of a cannon.

At one time or another almost everyone has experienced that split second where you know exactly what's going to happen but there's absolutely nothing you can do about it. One side of your brain registers everything that's happening at the same velocity it unfolds while the other side basically shuts down as you brace yourself for the inevitable.

The crowd collectively gasped, there was a resounding thud of two bodies colliding, and then there was this eerie silence.

About two feet to my left, Marcikaski lay motionless. The cowboy (miraculously unharmed) who'd joined the press corps so abruptly stood quietly at his side, waiting for assurances from the medical response team who'd raced over to work on him, that Marcikaski was going to be all right.

The medics reported that while Marcikaski would be okay, he'd been cut for stitches where his flash attachment had carved a gash into his skull. It was off to the hospital for treatment and a check up to confirm he'd sustained no other serious injuries. He received a rousing cheer when he returned later in the afternoon, banged up, bruised and bandaged but he had the shot of the day in his camera and was now basically ready to take up where he'd left off.

The lesson was clear: If you want that perfect shot, you have to put fear aside and get out on the infield where the action is. Sometimes you have to "take the bull by the horns" as it were. It was time to climb out from behind the plexi-glass and get into the thick of it.

As I stepped onto the infield and headed for the chute area I admit I was more than a little apprehensive. But I'm happy to report that it paid off, because, in the end, I did get that perfect shot no one else captured. (see page one photo).

Common ground

A handful of stars

By Edo Deweerdt,
Youth Involvement
Facilitator
Office of the Commissioner of Services for Children & Families, Region 5

When was the last time you cried? Startled by such a personal question? Then perhaps you might find the next one less unsettling - then again, you might not: Suppose one of your friends confided in you that he/she was really depressed and was, in fact, contemplating suicide; how would you deal with it? Would you even feel confident in your own problem-solving abilities when faced with a crisis like this? And if not, would you know places or people you could direct your friends to for help and support? What if a total stranger would approach you in the street with questions like these, would you even consider answering them?

Well, some of you might not, but in a dozen communities throughout Health Region #5, more than 200 young people obliged a total stranger with answers to these and other such questions virtually without hesitation.

But I'm getting ahead of the story somewhat. Let me first introduce myself. I am Edo Deweerdt of Rimbey, Alberta - artist/writer, former journalist and teacher and until the end of this month, Youth Involvement Facilitator with the Office of the Commissioner of Services for Children and Families in Didsbury.

As most of you are aware through this column and numerous news stories in newspapers, on radio and TV, in 1995 the provincial government embarked on a project whose ultimate goal is a radically restructured system of delivery of services to the province's children and their families. Steering Committees were formed in each of the 17 Health Regions to help in this monumental task. Believing that the voice of young people should be heard in this process, the Steering Committee in Health Region 5 sought and received funding this spring for the creation of the temporary position of Youth Involvement Facilitator.

Its mandate was to seek input from youths throughout the Region and to distill this input into a piece of "social drama."

So it came to be that I, armed with an ID and lots of enthusiasm, set out to find youths willing to spend a moment or two sharing their opinions, thoughts, stories with a bearded, greying, middle-aged man none of them had ever met before.

And you know what? I found them! I found them on the street as they were walking home from swimming lessons. I found them at teen drop-in centres, at an outreach school and in amusement arcades. I found them on sidewalks, carrying their skateboards; I found them in parks, under bridges, in restaurants, in front yards and at fishing ponds. The youngest was six and the oldest 24.

I asked questions, lots of questions, and it usually did not take long for the answers to come. I wanted to know how they felt about their own problem-solving abilities and those of others; I wanted to know where they would turn in case of a personal crisis. I asked them if they knew the number of the Kid's Help phone line and where they would be able to find it. I asked them if they had ever made use of that toll-free number.

I asked them why they came to teen drop-in centres, what they thought of outreach schools and I asked what kind of support and/or assistance they would be able to lend their friends.

Often the dynamics of the group would lead to lively discussions. We talked about poverty, alcohol and drug abuse, teen pregnancies, physical and sexual abuse, step parents and siblings, dreams, job aspirations and a whole bunch of other stuff.

Most of them I met only once; others more frequently. But without exception, their candour, honesty, intelligence and their stories impressed and touched me deeply.

I acknowledge the support of the youths themselves, also the members of the Steering Committee, for their vision; to Peter and Pearl, my supervisors, for believing in me; to Molly, for her inspiration and her laughter; to Pat, Carol, Tanya, Misty and Cheryl for their never ending patience and to the hitch-hikers for sharing their stories with me.

And watch for "A Handful of Stars," a blunt, in-your-face piece of social drama, soon coming to a theatre near you.

Back to school safety

Child pedestrian safety

By Shelley R. Hiebert, R.N.
Health Authority 5

With summer holidays drawing rapidly to a close, the excitement of returning to school builds. Now is a good time to talk to your children about pedestrian safety. Motor vehicle accidents, including child pedestrian injuries are the leading cause of childhood injury and death. Resulting injuries are usually severe and frequently result in admission to hospital. In Alberta, 38 children (0-14 years) were killed and 1656 children were injured between 1988-92. In 1991-92, three of the injured child pedestrians had been drinking.

For children, crossing the street is a very complex task, involving looking left and right and judging distances. Because of varying traffic flow, time of day, type of crossing and intersection, number of lanes and where the intersection is located (residential or not), almost each pedestrian exposure is unique.

Many factors are involved in child pedestrian injuries - environmental, child, social and driver related. It has been shown that incidents are more likely to occur on busy streets as well as those streets where over 10 per cent of the curb is occupied by vehicles. Complex traffic situations, greater speed limits and lack of safe places to cross are additional environmental factors.

Children 6-9 years of age may not be developmentally ready to cross the street. They have trouble understanding traffic terms and road signs. Practical applications of the left/right concept have not been fully developed by this age. While children tend to be over cautious rather than risk takers when making crossing decisions, it is their lapse of attention that probably results in the risky decision. One study has shown that parents overestimated their 5-6 year old child's skills when compared to the child's actual abilities. Children between 5-10 years underestimate the time of arrival of an approaching vehicle. This underestimation decreases with age.

More care called for

Dear Editor:

Letters such as the one from Jean Craven (Aug. 14 Didsbury Review) re: Cyclists are long overdue.

Another concern is about motorists. The Esso service station and car wash can be entered from 20th Street. Another entrance is from 17th Avenue. Many motorists going south on 20th turn in on 17th, and cut across the eastbound lane to enter without regard for any vehicle eastbound on 17th.

Recently a collision could have occurred when a small truck travelling at top speed made a curve off 20th Street across 17th Avenue as I was going east. Only by having my foot on the brake to slow down as I neared the stop sign was I able to stop in time to let the driver of the truck scoot by in front of me.

There is no excuse for such dangerous, irresponsible behavior behind the wheel of a vehicle when entrance can be made with a right hand turn without crossing over in front of oncoming vehicles.

Elle From Didsbury

Studies have shown that many injured children are from single parent families or lower socioeconomic groups due to higher density housing, more curb parking and lack of playgrounds. Risk of pedestrian injury increase five-fold when there is no playground nearby.

Drivers may have trouble detecting the child and correctly estimating their distance from the car because of the child's size. The majority of negligent drivers already had poor driving records. Finally, if the driver is exceeding 50 km/h or fails to use any avoidance maneuvers (such as braking or swerving), the child is more likely to be severely injured.

Typically, the child pedestrian injuries in Alberta occur in urban areas, between 3 - 7 p.m. (Friday being the most common day), involve 5-19 year olds (boys twice as often as girls), and at intersections with complex crossing conditions - 2 or more lanes of traffic with speed over 40 km/h. Two-thirds of the injuries occurred in good weather conditions. According to CHIRPP (Canadian Hospital Injury Reporting and Prevention Program) data, 40 per cent of injured children were admitted to hospital, with 20 per cent requiring significant treatment with follow-up. Fractures most frequently resulted in hospital admission, followed by multiple system trauma and concussion. The body part most frequently injured was the lower extremity followed by the head or neck.

To reduce child pedestrian injuries, encourage traffic calming techniques in your neighborhood - such as re-routing traffic away from areas where children live, reducing speed limit on residential streets. Decrease curb parking near schools, crossings and where children live. Supervise children when they cross the street or play near a road. Model, teach and practice safe street crossing strategies. Watch for children when you drive, especially after school. Teach your child the hazards of darting onto the street in mid-block. Finally encourage children to stop look and keep looking while crossing streets; play in parks and not on the road; cross at controlled crossings but always be careful; wear bright clothes for visibility.

If you would like more information on keeping your child safe please contact your nearest Health Unit office.

The Didsbury Parade, Fair and Rodeo

1. The Pee Wee D Provincial Champion baseball team displayed their winning medals in Saturday's parade... 2. Five-year-old Alex Borgland captured first place in the pre-school category of last Saturday's parade... 3. Marg and Art Weaver picked up their last prize over the weekend: complimentary passes to the 4th annual rodeo... 4. Three-year-old Danielle Neergaard (centre at bottom of slide) was one of scores of children to search for "buried treasure" in the Reimer money pit last Saturday... 5. Marion Scott was one of the special prize winners at the Bench Show over the weekend. She is pictured with her "Gifts of the Garden" first place entry... 6. Eight-year-old Jason Collinge put his best (new) face forward after popping by the Just Done For Fun face-painting booth. The booth was located in the Western Wares room along with a farm safely display and an eclectic collection of crafty treasures with a western theme- all new to the Fair this year... 7. The Bullets Drill Team opened the Saturday Rodeo with flair, and the national anthem was sung by Didsbury's own Shawna Whiteside... 8. Ryan Chernow, a first place winner in the 12-13 judging category took a rest with his portable pony as he waited for the parade to begin... 9. The Didsbee was a popular parade entrant, making new friends up and down the entire parade route... 10. While the cattle show managed to coincide with a brief rain storm on Saturday, it could have been worse as points west and north of Didsbury got hail... 11. Kayla Pross sang the national anthem which opened the Didsbury Outlaws first-ever Achievement Day and Rodeo Saturday evening. She also got 'em misty-eyed at the Ag Society Showcase program Saturday morning with her rendition of "Daddy's Hands" which she dedicated to her father. Other entertainers who performed at the breakfast-time singing showcase event included: Alexanne Tschritter, Patricia Slobodian, Shawna Whiteside, Larry Hooper, Sherry Tschritter, Todd Gadd, 'Mishy' Charron, Lynne Leonard, Amy Bales and Aaron Laviolette.

ROTHERT

So....now what's to eat?

Sheryl Rothert, is a wife, a mother, and an advocate of healthy food choices with a B.Sc. B.Ed. in Home Economics. With more than a decade's worth of teaching experience, Rothert now offers tips and recipes for today's busy family.

Countdown time! That "S" word is soon upon us and now's a good time to practice the routines we'll need once school is in full swing and everyone's off to a busy schedule. I've mentioned this before, but it's time for a reminder - you do need breakfast! Everyone of all ages work and think so much better if they've had breakfast to get their day started.

It has also been found that a high percentage of overweight people go without breakfast.

Strange, but true! Because of missing breakfast, they make up for it throughout the day, either by eating the wrong thing or by eating too much...or both! Please do yourselves a big favour - eat a meal balanced in nutrients for breakfast. Here's an unusual, but nutritious item for breakfast. It's even portable!

Tip of the week: The popsicles contain carbohydrates in the fruit which help to use the energy in the protein. This energy will last longer than something sugary such as a donut. The dairy products in the popsicles provide calcium as well as many other nutrients.

All that needs to be added to this breakfast to make it complete is a muffin, bagel or English muffin to represent the bread group. The above ingredients can also be used as a drink for you adults that would rather skip the popsicle idea!

Breakfast Nog Popsicles

2 c. plain frozen yogurt
1 banana, pureed
16 oz. frozen orange juice
1 1/2 c. skim milk

1. Mix first three ingredients together in the blender.

2. Gradually blend in the milk and pour into popsicle molds.

3. Freeze overnight.

Mount View Lodge news

By Annie Caush

Hi all! Hasn't the weather been grand the last few days? We've enjoyed being able to get out and enjoy the lovely flowers around our Lodge and all over town. There are so many really beautiful gardens this year.

One afternoon last week we went to Red Deer in the Legion van and spent an hour in the gardens around their City Hall. They are really beautiful but no better than lots here in Olds except they are so big. After we toured the garden we were ready for an ice cream cone before coming home.

One day recently we were invited to the "Funkhouser's Cabin", west of Sundre where we enjoyed a delicious meal out-doors served by Gene's family. It was lovely. Thanks so much.

As usual we had excellent seats over by the Baptist Church to watch the parade. We were joined by residents from Carstairs and Sundre and they had dinner after the parade with us and then we enjoyed some good old-time music.

Did you see three of our residents proudly riding in a decorated buggy in the parade? It won a first prize. Thank you, Mr. Charlton for your team and buggy.

We were saddened recently by the death of a long time resident, Monica Jackson. Our sincere sympathy to her family and friends.

Gladys Dawson is still in hospital. Get well soon.

At The Kitchen Table

Dublin and walk the cobbled streets of my forefathers and I could almost taste the air at Connemara and smell Galway Bay. "The Emerald Isle," could there be a more beautifully romantic name for a more beautifully romantic place? I tried to understand Brendan Behan and I read the poetry of Patrick Kavanagh and Yeats, I sang Irish songs and was proud to wear green on St. Patrick's Day.

Dad's wee Irish Granny had six children, one of who was Margaret. Margaret married a man named Burroughs and I suppose that could be an Irish name as well. They had 12 children including Martha who married Richard Franklin and I know that the Franklins came from England. The Franklins' daughter, Ruby Anne, married William Leath Johnston and I know that the Johnstons came from Dumfries in Scotland. Their son Glen (my dad) married Martha Mattern whose parents had come from Norway so my siblings and I have a pretty feeble connection to The Emerald Isle and these days I am quite happy with that. I am all out of patience with the Irish and their everlasting troubles. Wouldn't it be nice if the Irish would just grow up.

Nearly 200 years ago, the British Catholic king, James II, attacked Londonderry. Thirteen young apprentice boys are supposed to have shut the city gates against James' army. The City defenders, who were supporting the Protestant William of Orange for the British throne, eventually won the fight but thousands of people, mainly Protestants, died in the battle. The Apprentice Boys is an all male Marching Fraternity devoted to commemorating this event. They planned to have 10,000 people and 180 bands in their march last weekend. That is a lot of Apprentice Boys and that is a lot of absolute stupidity. Wouldn't they be better off to go home and cut the grass or pick up some garbage from a bomb site or do some laundry for heavens sake. Why would anyone feel the need to commemorate so much bloodshed and horror over and over again?

The Apprentice boys march in 1969 set off the last quarter century of "troubles" that have killed 3,200 people. All the heartbreak and the grieving, all the broken families and kids weaned on hatred, all the lost innocence and shattered homes and nightmares that don't go away. And if they don't care about the blood that is being spilled, don't they have any care for the billions of dollars in damage to their cities and all that money that might better have gone for education and health care?

Meanwhile the Pro-Irish Nationalists, who are mostly Catholic, are insulted by the Apprentice Fools march and plan a parade of their own. Imagine the fun? Two parades of Irish idiots. And all of them happily swilling their beer and planning to kill each other while they march behind banners depicting historical scenes and images from the Bible.

Maybe the key word here is "all male" marching fraternity. Ireland is not exactly on the cutting edge when it comes to equal rights for women. Maybe if the women of Ireland would stand up and demand that their husbands, fathers and sons grow up and take on responsibility and accountability there would be some hope for peace in Ireland. As for me, if I could remember where I left my Irish penny I would drop it in the garbage and these days I mostly do fake Norwegian accents.

(Reproduction of this article is not permitted without the permission of the publisher.)

My Dad's great, great, grandparents Robert and Elizabeth Booth lived in Dublin, Ireland and came to Canada in 1818. They settled near Huntley, in Huntley Township, Carleton County, Ontario. Robert was killed while felling a tree.

There was a time when I was really proud of that. (Not the getting killed while felling a tree bit, the came from Ireland bit.) I wore an Irish penny on a chain around my neck and though I cringe now at the memory, when people asked me about the coin I was capable of faking a terrible Irish accent while I explained about "my wee Irish granny." I was enamored of all things Irish and I loved their poetry, literature and music. I longed to go to

The Way of Life

You may have heard the story that was going the rounds a few years back. You know the one about the only person that was good enough for the particular job was someone who could jump tall buildings at a stride and walk on water!

I was reminded of this last week when the Sunday reading used in some churches was about Jesus walking on water, and reaching the disciples in the middle of a lake.

Our popular joke about high expectations is likely based on a bible story. In many areas of life we expect "superman" or "superwoman". These days with dozens of applicants for every job that comes available we no longer simply expect that a job should be done, instead society is building in an expectation that every doctor, teacher, social worker, company person, farmer, rancher, etc., will out-perform every other person. Figuratively speaking, they have to walk on water.

Is this really helpful to society? It is debatable, because while a healthy competition has always existed and likely always will, we seem to be dealing with more and more fellow workers, and brothers and sisters, and friends who are more and more stressed and concerned by this very competitive world.

In addition, more and more people can feel excluded from the high pressure society. Each and every person needs to be valued for their abilities and contributions, as that is reassuring and affirming for each individual that each one of us comes across in our every day life.

Where does the story of Jesus walking on water fit in with what I have just written?

Jesus walking on water can be seen at different levels depending what people believe about Jesus. For those who believe that he was the Son of God, then Jesus was indeed a "superman" because He was both human and divine. This meant that God who created everything could change the laws of nature, and perform miracles. If miracles of healing, and feeding then why not walking on water?

Jesus' purpose was to go to the disciples in the middle of a storm in the middle of the night to bring comfort and reassurance, and to ease fear and anxiety.

It is this aspect of the life of Jesus that everyone can accept, if they wish to accept it. Jesus, can come to people in the storms and tensions of their every day life to calm fears, to reassure, to affirm. Sometimes life can be so disappointing and so troubling that it seems that only an incredible individual could do anything to bring peace to a situation. In one sense they have to walk on water to make the problems go away. That can happen with God in a person's life.

"Lots of people said 'A weekend for two in Didsbury? But you live here!' But it was a wonderful weekend - a real experience."

-Marg Weaver

Faces

a brief glimpse at the people and events in our community

Weekend for Two winners

Art and Marg Weaver, the winners of the Weekend for Two in Didsbury contest, collected on their prize two weekends ago and they say that they saw Didsbury through fresh eyes.

"We take it for granted, but hey folks, it's a great town," Marg Weaver said with a smile.

Before the official weekend, the couple took in their night at the swimming pool where Marg visits regularly for aquacize classes.

"The steam room, the hot tub and into the pool as well," Marg said.

The fun started Friday night with supper at the Didsbury Inn, where Marg remembers the pepper steak was "very good."

Afterward they picked up their courtesy car from Mountain View Motors.

"You might want to mention it was a Ford Taurus," Marg said with a smile. "It was a beautiful car."

Then the couple checked into the Super 8 Motel who provided a VCR so they could enjoy their free selection of Video View choices.

"We saw Mr. Holland's Opus," Marg said, "and 'To Dance With The White Dog' That was the last movie Jessica Tandy made before she died; it's a family show and a beautiful film, if anyone's looking for a good movie to rent."

The Super 8 Motel impressed the couple on several fronts.

"There was a wedding in the Memorial Complex that night and we never heard a thing," Marg said.

Art agreed, saying they never heard street noise from 20th Avenue, either, and the air conditioning was welcome after a day in the hot sun. They were also pleased to note that the doors are locked and the night bell turned on later in the evening, offering a safe and secure beginning to a restful night.

"The rooms are great and it's so clean, it was wonderful," Marg said.

On Saturday morning they visited with Rob Merritt and had a "wonderful" breakfast at JR's Country Deli and Cafe. Then it was off for a tour of the surrounding country side and nearby points of interest like the Dickson Dam camping area.

From the 'perfect timing department' - just days before collecting their prize, the Weavers' car was due for an oil change. Their car is leased and oil changes must be done exactly on schedule. One of the prizes was a free oil change and wheel balance from Fountain Tire, and the prize was both timely and practical. The golfer in the family is (son) Ken Weaver, and he made the rounds on the links of the Didsbury Golf Course with his daughter. They managed to squeeze in massages from Avicenna Massage Clinic, a car wash courtesy Didsbury Esso along the way. Supper that night was courtesy the Wheatland Family Restaurant and then it was back to the motel and a cozy evening of videos and sweet dreams.

Sunday morning, Gene and Ila Hartman, representing the Review and Contemporary Graphics joined the Weavers for a sumptuous mid-morning feast at the Grimmson House Bed and Breakfast.

"We had a really nice visit and Myrna really rolled out the red carpet for us," Marg said. "She put on a beautiful spread and we had a wonderful time."

Afterward, the Weavers went for another relaxing drive in the country.

"Sunday night it was all over," Marg said, "We took the car back Monday morning."

They had to save their free pizza from Steve's Place and their Subway subs for later as they "just couldn't eat so much in one weekend," Marg explained with a smile. They also had complimentary tickets to the Didsbury Rodeo, courtesy of the Didsbury Ag Society.

A firm booster of the shop at home concept, Marg said winning the contest was great fun, and thought it would be a good idea to make it an annual event to show home town shoppers how Didsbury merchants go the extra mile.

Donations sponsoring the campaign were also made by several businesses including: Spectrum Studio, AG Foods, Treasury Branch, Didsbury Drugs, Didsbury Esso, Mountain View Sports, Kuelker's Supplies, Don's World Travel, Freeman's Mens and Boys Wear, Ward Value Drug Mart, Didsbury Home Hardware, Mountain View Motors, Aurora Travel, Potentials, Mountain View Credit Union, and Fountain Tire.

The service afforded by the Didsbury business community is something Marg said shoppers sometimes take for granted.

"The businesses in town really try their best to please you; if they don't have something in, they'll bring it in for you," she said.

She also subscribes to the theory that you get out of your community what you put into it, and the Weavers are home town boosters who enjoy participating in community events, programs and activities.

"I joined the museum when we came here and it was the best thing I could have done; I've met so many people through that," she said. "Didsbury is a wonderful place to live."

Marg said that they enjoyed a bit of celebrity status as they showed up to collect prizes at various locations. They were often greeted with "Oh, you're the ones who won the contest!"

More often than not, the couple were welcomed on a first name basis, by clerks and business owners who knew the couple by their first names.

"You just don't get the same kind of personal service in the city," she said. "That's what I like about shopping here. You go into [a Didsbury business] and there's always someone right there to help you find what you need."

Marg Weaver is a home town booster and the weekend activities served to further convince her that Didsbury is a nice place to call home.

It was wonderful," she said. "Lots of people laughed and said, 'A weekend for two in Didsbury? But you live there!' But it was a wonderful weekend - a real experience."

Home sweet home

Six year-old Caitlan Hunter is one of the youngest home-owners in the area. She was the winner of the Lions Dream Playhouse, which was drawn for on Sunday. Caitlan's mother, Colleen Hunter said the Lions delivered the playhouse before the Hutners returned home on Sunday. When it became visible as they headed up the driveway, Caitlan picked it out right away. She was so excited she was unbuckled and almost out of the van before Tom, Colleen, sister Jayme and Caitlan could stop for a closer look.

"She was excited," said Colleen Hunter.

LITTLE THINGS MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Today's Hint is actually a few little hints to make weight loss easier:

- 1) Stand tall, suck in your tummy, straighten your back. Good posture can take inches off your appearance!
- 2) Carry a toothbrush with you and brush your teeth after every meal or snack. You'll think twice before you take one bite of a donut or pop a candy in your mouth.
- 3) Try a flattering new hairstyle; plan to wear an attractive outfit each day, shine your shoes. A weight loss program is easier when you feel good about yourself.

Wheat Growers speak out

Examples of why the Wheat Growers feel that choice is necessary abound over the last few years. Among the more extreme examples

The Wheat Growers deplore the fact that the grain marketing debate is being conducted through rallies and emotion-laden public meetings. We feel it is important that a balanced view be presented at all times. Some important points we think have to be made in this debate follow.

The Wheat Growers support an effective Canadian Wheat Board, but believes that fundamental reform is necessary.

The Wheat Growers developed a workable model for a dual market, and answered all the objections to dual marketing that have been raised by its opponents. That model was presented to the Western Grain Marketing Panel.

The key issue is whether farmers are to be given a choice in how they market their grain. Other issues, like the governance of the Board, are peripheral. Virtually everyone who appeared before the panel agreed that governance issue had to be addressed.

The issue of choice is a fundamental public policy decision that can only be made by the government. Mr. Goodale has a unanimous report, prepared by his own hand-picked panel. He has deflected every question in the last six months by referring to the panel report. Now he must implement what the panel has unanimously recommended.

are the following:

1) The 1994/95 barley pool, where the CWB was forced to maintain low initial prices because of sales made at low price early in the crop year, and then could not attract deliveries later because of strengthening prices. The farmer (through the CWB) paid heavy demurrage and contract extension penalties because of the inflexibility of the CWB system.

2) The fusarium problem in the 1993 crop. The CWB refused to accept delivery of fusarium infected wheat, when a ready market was available in the U.S. Canadian farmers were shut out of a market for their product by the CWB monopoly.

3) The current low initial prices which are set at only 60 to 70 per cent of the current PRO, when the usual standard is 70 to 80 per cent. Farmers could not lock in higher prices that existed this spring because their only option for selling is the CWB.

The Wheat Growers believe that examples like this prove over and over that farmers cannot be tied to only one market outlet. They must have choice, and must have the maximum flexibility to sell their products in whatever market is offering the best price, and to lock in price when they are high. A monopoly buyer, even one that is controlled by farmers, does not offer the necessary choice to farmers.

Regional Summary

Generally a hot, dry week throughout the region. The eastern portions still require rain.

Crops have advanced due to the hotter and dryer weather, still some concern related to crop maturity and lateness. Wheat crop range from the milky dough to soft stage; barley crop range from soft dough to firm dough; canola crops range from the late flowering stage to pod formation and filling to filled and color change occurring to being swathed; pea crop are done flowering, pods are formed and filling, some powdery mildew being reported; flax crop are into advanced flower with boll and seed formation; fall seeded crops are quite advanced with some fall rye being harvested and winter wheat crop in the soft to firm dough stage. Silaging is continuing with some areas already completed silaging. Sclerotinia is evident in many canola fields, extent of damage yet to be determined. Canola root maggots continue to have impact particularly on polish canola. Crop conditions overall are good, heat stress is evident throughout the region at varying levels, the east part of the region is showing the most heat stress.

Pasture conditions are fair to poor, many pastures are browning and slowing in growth due to dryness and heat. Haying is approaching completion of the first cut, hay yields are down and quality is reasonably good. Second cut alfalfa haying has started.

Goodale's indecision angers WCWGA

"Public demonstrations over grain marketing in Western Canada are a direct result of Ralph Goodale's refusal to act on the Western Grain Marketing Panel's report," said Larry Maguire, President of the Western Canadian Wheat Growers Association on August 12.

Maguire pointed out that the Minister handpicked a group of farmers and industry representatives, and they gave him a unanimous report. Maguire said he is dumfounded by the Minister's unwillingness to make a decision. "What more does he need?" Maguire asked.

"This spectacle of farmers arguing in the streets was exactly what the Panel was created to avoid," said Maguire, "but the Minister is causing chaos by refusing to act."

"It is deplorable," said Maguire, "that the Minister is driving the debate down to this level," and he called on Mr. Goodale to implement the Panel recommendations. "We need to have clear direction for the industry, and we need to put a stop to this destructive public controversy," Maguire said. "Only Mr. Goodale can do this."

Alberta requests crop year extension

In many areas in the province, especially northwest and southeast Alberta, grain elevators are experiencing severely congested conditions.

As a number of points have little to no space for additional storage and few car orders to relieve the congestion in the short term, Alberta Agriculture, Food and Rural Development Minister Walter Paszkowski has written Federal Agriculture and Agri-Food Minister Goodale requesting an extension to the 1995/96 crop year.

The extension would allow farmers to complete their deliveries and take advantage of the old crop prices and the 1995/96 freight rate levels.

Southwest Didsbury news

Best wishes of the area are extended to Soren Rasmussen of Westcott who underwent surgery last week in the Foothills Hospital.

Do hope you'll be feeling better soon Soren.

The area would like to welcome new folks to the area, Shayne and Nancy McTavish, who have moved from Didsbury, into the Don Weber farm home, their children are Travis, 8 years and Tyler, 4 years old. They lived in Didsbury for 1½ years and now are enjoying the country living. Shayne drives truck for "Storm Express" of Red Deer and Nancy works at the Didsbury Post Office. We hope you'll soon get acquainted with the friendly area.

Sympathy of the area is extended to Doreen McEwen and family as husband and father Stanley passed away suddenly, Friday, August 9, 1996. Funeral services were held at the Zion Evangelical Missionary Church, Didsbury on Tuesday, August 13. Rev. Richard Pahl and Dr. Ken Jordan conducted the memorial service. Interment was in the Didsbury Cemetery. Stan was born and grew up on the home farm north of Waterloo on April 25, 1926.

Stan farmed most of his life with twin brother Mel and then he and wife Doreen retired to town six years ago. Stan loved gardening and taking care of his flowers, talking and visiting with friends and especially the K-40 Club people. He will be sadly missed by his family and many friends.

Happy 80th birthday is extended to Helen Clayton who will be celebrating by family hosting a tea party in the College Green recreation room on Sunday, August 18.

Congratulations and best wishes of the Westcott area go to newlyweds Carolyn Fortner and Ronald Olsen, who were married July 28 at their acreage east of Westcott. Noreen Olson conducted the double ring wedding ceremony at 6:30 p.m. About 30, family and a few friends attended the wedding including Carolyn's mother and father, Lloyd and Evelyn Bryant of Lindsey, Ontario. A lovely three layer decorated carrot cake was made by Ron's daughter Rhonda. All enjoyed a buffet supper and watched the happy couple opening gifts and wished them many happy years together. Ron drives truck for Stay Sales, Calgary and Carolyn works at the Didsbury Hospital and Sims Furniture, Olds.

Ed and Dot Himbeault, west of Calgary (formerly of Didsbury) have embarked on a new project - they're constructing a riding arena on a portion of son-in-law Rick and daughter Dena Wannamaker's farm southwest of Didsbury. This building is 40 x 150 ft. and will be the largest free standing canvas building in this area. The building is mostly for their own use, as they have two barrel horses and one roping horse and need room to keep them in good training condition.

The couple presently live southwest of Calgary and plan on moving out, when building is completed. They own a 34 ft. motorhome and they follow the old time rodeo circuit of western Canada and USA and plan on going to the warmer climate of USA for the winter.

Note: Birthday club will meet at Joan Hunspergers for the August meeting, on Wednesday, August 28.

Severe electric storm and heavy rain hit the area Thursday evening, August 15. No hail please.

Town council briefs

Mayor Ray Lea proclaimed September 1, 1996, "Technicians and Technologists Day" in the Town of Didsbury. Remember to take time out of your Sunday schedule to take your favorite technologist to lunch on the first of September...

Land use bylaws 96-06 through 96-09 were passed by council after public hearings closed at a meeting held prior to the regular town council session. Bylaw No. 96-07 generated considerable discussion prior to its passing in an amended form. Intended to cover large lots within town limits, one section dealing with domestic livestock evoked several questions and comments from the gallery. The section (number 7 under "Special Requirements") under discussion originally read: "All bylaws pertaining to domestic livestock shall apply. No livestock or poultry, with the exception of dogs, cats and such other domestic pets as are kept indoors, shall be permitted in this district."

The point was raised that while the lots under discussion were within town limits, they were at the edge of town and fell into acreage-type usage. It was requested that council make provisions for horses and perhaps even for miniature stock animals. After extensive discussion, the revised bylaw made provisions to allow a maximum of three horses or cattle.

Two additional bylaws making provisions to set up 911 emergency call service were set aside until the next regular council meeting on September 3, to allow the public a final chance for input. Interested residents may attend the special public hearing in town council chambers beginning at 7 p.m., on Tuesday, September 3, just prior to the regular council meeting. If no objections are raised, bylaw number 96-10 and number 96-11 will be presented for second and third readings.

A request by the Didsbury Ag Society to grant permission to install a permanent power pole near the edge of the ball diamond southeast of the swimming pool was approved by council with the Ag Society assuming responsibility for installation and obtaining the required electrical permits. The pole will provide a permanent source of power for Ag Fair tenting power requirements.

It was agreed by council that sale proceeds from lot sales on the site of the old swimming pool would go toward early pay out of a debenture taken out to pay for the arena heating system.

A letter from the office of Shirley McClellan, now the Minister of Alberta Community Development, confirmed the issuing and deposit of an $8,000 grant on July 19, earmarked for operation of the tourist booth located at the Rosebud Valley Campground.

Didsbury Outlaws rodeo results

All those hours of practice and extra effort by the members and supporters of the Didsbury 4-H club paid off handsomely last Saturday night as the first-ever Achievement Day and Rodeo played out to a nice crowd in the Memorial Complex arena.

Several highlights made the evening memorable. The cheer that went up when Carl Dorin made Junior Breakaway Roping look easy was reportedly audible outside the building. The barrel racers were coming in with times comparable to those registered by the experienced racers from the FCA rodeo held earlier in the day. Nadine Williams and Sheila Taylor fearlessly climbed aboard bucking beef as the only female entrants in the Senior Steer Riding class; Taylor, who is the club president, entered every event on the card. Gord Krebs topped off what must have been an exhausting day of FCA rodeo ground work by taking a turn as a rodeo clown at the 4-H event. It was interesting and impressive that this was the club's first home town rodeo, but with this much talent on tap, it's a safe bet it won't be their last.

On deck were: announcer - Dave Mailer; show secretary - Lois Taylor; judge - Mike Crowe; and rodeo clown Gord Krebs. Kayla Pross who opened the show with 'Oh Canada', president Sheila Taylor who recited the 4-H pledge, and Garth Dorin who delivered an arresting cowboy prayer.

Results of the top three (where applicable) finishers from the event follow.

LOCAL BAND PACKS 'EM IN

Fast fellas

The Westcott Golden Boys captured the League Championship 'Brian Luft Memorial Trophy' in fine form earlier this month.

Not only did the team finish the regular season undefeated, they swept all playoff games without losing any games played. They also won all tournaments entered (with the exception of a heartbreaker lost in the A final on a tournament). The Golden Boys have captured the league championship three years in a row and taken home the trophy four out of the last five years.

The numeral '44' on the players' jerseys is of special significance to the team members as it was Tyson Van Tighem's number.

The players decided to honor their former teammate's memory by attaching the memento to each jersey.

Does the fastball team have a secret they'd be willing to share to explain their success? Pitcher Brent Youngs said it boiled down to basics.

"The guys all get along, like to play and hate to lose."

NEW AND IMPROVED

Volunteers descended on the grounds of the Didsbury Play Group last Friday to paint and spruce up the main building and playground equipment for the upcoming days and years to come. On the ladder is Brian Grant and below are Lynn, Thomas and Alex Grant with Dean MacKenzie at back. Out of frame are Charmaine, Jamie and Allysa MacKenzie.

AquaQuest program coming to DAC

The Didsbury Aquatic Centre swimming lesson program is changing. In April of 1996, The Canadian Red Cross Society introduced the all new AquaQuest program and pools across Canada were given until January 1 of 1997 to incorporate the AquaQuest program into their pools. No more colors at the DAC, no more Beach Tot program, no more Adult Can Swim lessons. In their places, respectively, will be AquaQuest, AquaTots, and AquaAdults. The AquaQuest program provides a continuum of water safety education for all Canadians. Today, the Water Safety Program consists of Water Safety and Leadership programs, as well as research into safety promotion/injury prevention. The aim of the Water Safety Services is to prevent water-related injuries and fatalities.

Every year, approximately 600 Canadians die in water-related incidents and many more suffer unnecessarily from injuries sustained as the result of a water-related activity. To reduce water-related injuries and fatalities, the Canadian Red Cross Society Water Safety Program plans to provide Canadians with the awareness and knowledge to recognize and avoid dangerous situations. They also will provide Canadians who participate in the AquaQuest program with knowledge and skills to save their own lives, with basic rescue skills to enable them to save others, and with knowledge and awareness to recognize hazardous aquatic environments and equipment in their communities and to provide solutions. Nationally, Red Cross Water Safety Services operates in four main areas. These are the Water Safety Program, the Leadership Program, Drowning Research, and Safety Promotion/Injury Prevention.

The DAC staff are very excited about the implementation of this great new swimming lesson/water safety education program. AquaQuest will offer three levels of AquaTots (the old Parent and Tot program), three levels of preschool lessons (the old Beach Tot program), twelve levels of swimming lessons (the old eight color levels), and three levels of AquaAdults (the old Can Swim program). The AquaQuest program will focus on developing quality stroke technique, will introduce water safety and swimming skills and knowledge in a progressive manner, and will teach all participants to Prepare! Stay Safe! Survive! - the simple, underlying message that deals not only with what and how, but also why.

AquaQuest lessons begin September 10 and 14 at the DAC. For more information or to register, please drop in and talk to staff trained in the program. We are sure you're going to like this program as much as we do!
